New in the Library

Thinking Machines

by Luke Dormehl

A technology journalist takes you through the history of AI and how it makes up the foundations of the machines that think for us today. He also speculates on the incredible--and possibly terrifying--future.

The Girl from Everywhere

by Heidi Heilig

Nix, the daughter of a time traveler, spent sixteen years sweeping across the globe and through the centuries aboard her father's ship. But when her father gambles with her very existence, it all may come to an end.

Grand Illusions : American Art and the First World War

by David M. Lubin

Lubin discusses the historical events leading up to and beyond US involvement in WWI to discover the vast and pervasive influence of the conflict on American visual culture.

The Color of Law

by Richard Rothstein

This book shows that it was actually the local, state, and federal laws and policy decisions that promoted the discriminatory housing patterns in our cities that continue to this day.

Beyond Trans: Does Gender Matter?

by Heath Fogg Davis

This book examines and questions the need for gender categories and pushes the conversation on gender identity to its limits.

#Language Hacking French

by Benny Lewis

Unlike traditional language courses, the Language Hacking series focuses on the language and conversations you need to start speaking immediately. Available in French, Spanish, and German.

The Forest Feast

by Erin Gleeson

This cookbook features 100 fresh, wholesome, and delicious vegetarian dishes that are accompanied by vibrant photographs and clear instructions.

The Great Unknown

by Marcus du Sautoy

Du Sautoy explores the outer reaches of human understanding and examines seven "edges" of knowledge—chaos theory, matter, quantum physics, the universe, time, consciousness and infinity.

Banned Books Week is an annual event celebrating our freedom to read. This year's theme, "Words Have Power," is a reminder to us that words have power in both their presence and absence due to censorship. Banned Books Week is September 24—30th. Be sure to drop by the library and check out a banned book!
